A Duel with Bull Whips A teamster for a sawmiii company, which operates in the bottom lands near Chillicothe, Mo., brings a report of a queer duel that was fought last Sunday.

For some time there has been bad blood between James Stevens and William Graham. The trouble originally arose over the relative merits of the two men as oxen driv ers, or "buil punchers," each claiming to be the best in the section. The matter was kept within the bounds of a wordy war until last Sunday, when it was decided to set the the matter by a fight with bull whips.

These are dangerous weapons in the hands of an expert. They have a total length of about fiteen feet, and when well handled the wielder can take a strip of hide from the flanks of a bullock at every pop.

The preliminaries were all arranged, and the men were given plenty of room in which to circulate. There were no seconds, and the understanding was that the men should fight until one cried "enough." The em-ployees of the mill arranged themselves in a circle about one hundred feet in diameter, a circle about one hundred feet in diameter, and the men were told to go in and fight.

They approached to within fifteen feet of each other and halted. Then both began circling the long whips over their heads, waiting for an opportunity te give a cut. Graham was first to try, but his blow was dedged by Stevens, who also sent his lash wide of his mark. This was repeated several times, when Stevens sent his lash directly at the handle of Graham's whip, and by a quick twist tore it from his hand.

Graham quickly recovered his weapon, but not quiek twist tore it from his hand. Graham quickly recovered his weapon, but not before Stevens gave him two fearful lashes, one drawing the blood from his neck and the other tearing a strip out of his trousers leg. The pain so enraged Graham that he made a savage on-slaught on Stevens, cutting him twice, once across, slaught on Stevens, cutting him twice, once across, the face.

Stevens kept his temper, and again caught Graham's whip but before the latter could recover it, he was whipped about the head and face nntil he was completely blinded and at the mercy of his antagonist, who lashed him almost into tusensibility before he cried for mercy.—St. Joseph

A Savage Battle.

A savage battle took place on Saturday in the suburbs of San Francisco between August Whitemore's valuable horse and his bulldog. The horse, in going out of his stable, kicked the dog, whereupon the latter bit the horse. Then both animals became infurlated. The dog jumped and got a good hold on the horse's flank. He took a mouthful and set his jaws hard. Whitemore and his hired man rushed to the rescue. The horse, however, was in the fight, and not at all afraid. He shook the dog lose and then sent him flying in the air with a well directed kick. As soon as the bull dog could pick himself up he made another savege rush, jumping at the horse's throat. His sharp teeth found lodgment in the throat of his foe, and in a flash he had torn it horribly, partly severing the horse's windpipe. The horse screamed with pain and terror, and fell to the ground, while the dog kept on tearing at his throat. Whitemore and his hired man had made several vain attempts to separate the enimals. Whitemore got a pitchfork, with which he struck at the dog, and finally drove him from his victim. The maddened brute then turned on his master and caught him by the thigh. Whitemore, aided by his bired man, beat the dog off, escaping with-out serious injury. The buildog then re-turned to his prostrate adversary and began to chew his throat. Finally, seeing that the horse was nearly dead, Whitemore procured a rifle and sent a bullet threw the dog's head. As the brute was dying he fastened his teeth again in the flesh of the dying horse, locking his jaws so tight that the teeth had to be broken before the bodies could be separated. The horse was a thoroughbred readster, and cost his owner $1,200.

A SEA SERPENT .- A dispatch from Shediac, N. B., says: Two pilots and three other men, while on a mackerel fishing expedition, report that on Sunday last, when eight miles off the Richibucto shore, they saw a sea serpent. They estimated the animal to be 200 feet long and of about the size of a man's body. It had a flat-shaped head, with the eyes on top, like those of a frog. It resembled a snake and sometimes raised its head six feet out of water, and its body curved like an immense hawser. They were near enough to see its scales, and the animal remained within view for an bour or
